Distance Learning Module

University of
St Andrews

Mental Health

A Post Graduate level module for staff working in supervisory or professional positions in services for adults with learning disabilities.

MENTAL HEALTH

An Internet based distance learning course, for people working in supervisory or professional positions in the care of adults with learning disabilities.

What is it? – A distance learning course, studied part-time for people working in supervisory or professional positions in the care of adults with learning disabilities. The Open/Distance Learning materials are in an interactive style and contain individual activities, case studies, up to date research findings, structured text and current references. The materials are designed to encourage staff to use their own workplace experiences as a basis for new learning.

What qualifications are required for entry? – Normally a professional qualification or a degree, or substantial relevant work experience in a cognate discipline, together with at least three years practical experience in the field. Staff will normally be employed in the field of learning disabilities.

What level is the qualification? – The Module is at post graduate level, and is accredited at 15 post graduate points (Credit and Qualifications Framework level 11). Staff can do the module as a ‘stand alone’ qualification, or as part of the Post Graduate Certificate “Adults with Learning Disabilities who have Significant and Complex Needs”(60 Post Graduate credits)

CONTENT

What is studied in the module? – The module looks at what is known about mental health problems in people with learning disabilities. For example:

- Prevalence of mental health problems
- Classifying mental health problems
- Types of mental health problems
- Affective and non-affective psychotic disorders
- Neurotic and stress-related disorders
- Personality disorders
- Assessment of mental health problems
- Environmental, biological and genetic influences
- Behavioural phenotypes
- Ethical and legal issues
- Promoting good mental health and well-being in people with learning disabilities
- Developing effective services

Within each module there are also cross-module topics, i.e.

- Gender Issues
- Ethnic dimensions
- Genetics
- Communication
- Health Issues

How long will it take to complete the module? – The rate of progress will depend on each student’s aptitude, and the amount of time available for study. As a rough guide, we estimate that each module will need around 150 hours of study time, including completion of assignments. We would expect each module to be completed within a three month period.

Is attendance at University necessary? – No, this is a distance learning module. Students will be supported by telephone and email and meetings with tutors if requested. (See “What materials will be supplied?” below)

What assessment methods will be used? – A variety of online assessment methods will be used.

What materials will be supplied, and what facilities will I need? – Students will be supplied with written materials and given password-regulated Internet access to university library resources, including electronic databases, full text articles and good practice guidance. The main module materials will be online.

How much will it cost? – The cost for the module will be £480, including all materials.

When does the module start? – There are two intakes each year, in March and October.

What are the other modules in this series? – Challenging Behaviour, Offenders with Learning Disabilities, Vulnerability, Victimisation and Abuse, Older People with Learning Disabilities, Profound and Multiple Disabilities.
